Dr. Fredrik Sandberg
Innovation Consultant

Dr. Fredrik Sandberg grew up on a mixed livestock farm in Sweden and has built a career at the intersection of animal nutrition, health and sustainability. He earned his PhD in swine nutrition and growth modeling from the University of Edinburgh, where his research focused on the effects of nutrition during health challenges.

A recognized leader in animal nutrition and innovation, Dr. Sandberg currently serves as an Innovation Consultant, helping organizations develop science-based strategies and practical solutions that advance animal health, productivity and sustainability. His work focuses on translating research into innovative feeding programs and technologies across species to meet the growing global demand for sustainable, high-quality and safe animal protein.
